A CERTAIN humiliating consciousness of their own impotence disturbs the minds of the unofficial members of the Sanitary Board. This feeling may be Noon. - Private Meeting of Shareholders of The Punjom Mining Co., Ltd., at said to have reached a climan at last meeting, when Mr J. D. Humphreys brought forward his motion for the reconstruction of the Board. Ever since the Board was re-constituted, under the Public Health Ordinance, the unofficial members have been finding out that their powers are confined within very narrow limits, and as a matter of fact they seem to realise now if they did not do so some time seo, that so far as any real service to the public is con-Goods per Glenesk undelivered after this cerned, these powers smount to next is nothing. Mr J. D. The motion however mens to us to be inadequate, and we can hardly wonder that it did not receive the Noon. Meeting of Shareholders of The support even of the unofficial members. Hongkong Fire Insurance Co., Ltd., at Mr Humphreys asked for the support of the official members also, but that was Noon.-Meeting of Shareholdam of The hardly to be looked for. In his speach Jelebu Mining & Trading Co., Ltd., at in support of the motion, Mr Humphreys was somewhat discursive. He touched on many matters which, though of Noon .- Meeting of Shareholders of The interest, and even of importance to the Green Island Coment Co., Ld., at the colony, are outside the province of the Sanitary Board. This led to what is Noon .- Meeting of Shareholders of The usually described as a scene, and the China & Manila Steamship Co., Ltd., humdrum proceedings of the Board were for once enlivened by something 12.30 p.m.-Meeting of Shareholders of like an animated discussion, in the course of which some things were said The Hongkong Rope Manufacturing Co., Ltd., at the Company's Office. which would have been much better left unsaid, while some other things were put in a way which might List of Contributions to the Canton have been better it put different-Insurance Office, Ltd., to be sent in ly. Apart from this the discus sion may tend to show the strength of the feeling which undoubtedly exists against the meaner in which the purely mumcipal affairs of the colony are neglected or mismanaged by Governmental departments. This, we take it is the real reason which prompted Mr Humphreys to bring forward his CHEMISTS BY APPOINTMENT. motion for the reconstruction of the Sanitary Board on a popular basis. But the motion, as we have said, was inadequate. It is not, with the Sanitary Board, so much as with the Legislative Council, question of mere voting power. The question is, supposing the unofficial members had the advantage in this respect over the officials, of what avail would this advantage be to them or to the public? A majority of unofficial votes would not strengthen the position of the Board in any practical sense. The powers of the Board are defined by law, and whether it has an official or an unofficialmajority matters very little, if anything at all, unless these powers are extended. Mr Ede was quite right in saying that all community ties should have every facility for making their wants known and that the Sanitary Board should endeavour to meet the wishes of this community as far as Dossible. But how far is it possible for the Board to do so? We need not question Mr Ede's opinion that every member of the Board has tried to look at every question coming before the Board from the point of view of the public good Indeed, we may freely give the Board the credit for having always been actuated by good intentions: Further, we may say that if the Board is circupable of doing much good, it is equally incapable of doing much harm. An unofficial majority of representatives on the Board, whether elected only by British subjects or by the general comto the Colony, To quote Mr Francis the Board, as at present constituted, is perfectly competent to discharge all the duties devolving upon it. Among the members of the Board official and unofficial, there is seldom may marked differonce of opinion in regard to may hashed that comes before them. In the comparatively triffing matters over which they may be said to exercise control, they are, as a rule, unanimous in their decision. If anything crops up concerning which their only course is to recommend the Government to do something, both official and unofficial members neually take the same view. But the recommendation is afterwards referred to the head of the particular department which it affects; and it is not impossible to conceive that a gentleman, whoever he may be, assuming a Pook Bak attitude and saying—As a member of the Sanitary Board Thoted in favour of recommendation; as head of department, I am of opinion should be rejected. Mr Francis described Mr. limansreys motion as 'premature, and it werthinly was so, in so far that, even if it were passed, it would not strengthen the

The shop was insured for $3000 with Mesers Carlowitz and Co. No information has been obtained as to the origin of the fire. A detachment of police under Inspector Mackle, Western District, kept order at the fire. | SIR E. J. Reed, speaking at a banquet given at Cardiff by Mr Llewellyn Wood, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, said that it fell to his lot between 1863 and 1870 to advise the Board of Admiralty, and his advice was that they should not put their trust any longer in wooden ships, but build vessels of iron. If, however, he had foreseen some of the insanities to which successive Boards of Admiralty had lent themselves, he would have given them the opposite advice. He was concerned at the present moment in the construction of a foreign cruiser, a vessel without any armour at all, and without any protension to be anything but a very fast vessel built for the purpose of causing what mischief she could under certain conditions. He had no hesita-France by conspirators who relied on the tion in saying that every one of the guns outbreak of a contidental war (to be initiat. she carried could penetrate the unarmoured

The Electrician says:-Mr Henniker Heaton, having scored less than nothing by his intrasive importunities respecting colonial postage and telegraphs, is now asserting himself in regions nearer home. He wants to reduce the rate for telegrams between France and England to 1d. per word, or, more correctly, to forestall such reduction and take credit for it if it should occur. His information on this point, however, like much else that he is in the habit of parading with oracular confidence, turns out to have no foundation. There is no condition attaching to the Angle-French telegraphic agreement of 1889 that the rates should be revised in 1894. Heaton argues that, in the event of a revision, 1d. per word would suffice, that Mr Gladatone moved the adoption of being the sum of the inland rates of the two countries. The Postmaster-General declined to see it in that light, remembering probably that France, though one of the action of the Peers in adopting the the nearest, is not the only foreign country with which we are connected by cable, and that international barriers, as well as the cost of cables, count for something in the framing of tariffs. That Jersey benefits by the English inland rate, while France does not is an anomaly for which Mr Heaton will find plenty of precedents if he will turn his attention to the rates prevailing between towns on opposite sides of continental frontiers, however near those towns may be.

If all were done that possible, I think that when affairs have settled down again success might be expented. No fresh change in policy should be made. WITCHING WOMEN OF HISTORY. At the Royal Academy in London there are the portaits of three women-Lady. Hamilton, Mis Jordan and Sephie Arnould. The levely Emma is a type of rustic beauty at lits best-not refinedlikely to become coarse. Mrs Jordan shows, belind a charming face, intellect, wit, cleverness, and a gentle heart. Sophie Arnould shows greater wit, greater eleverness, and a heart not so gentle, perhaps. On each of the faces there is in addition unmilitakably, the same quality, rare and wonderful. It is the quality for which of being' burned at the stake they got fire to every masculing heart that approached

And what is the secret of this gift? It is rule the women who have been noted for depressing climates or malarious districts. Everythe fascination of their beauty were not one should keep up strongth by taking Peppers's pretty women at all. Anne Boleyn had Quinine, the world-known English Tonic. Botmany plactic defects. The Duchess of Burgundy, who lit up the old age of Louis XIV. and the Court of Versailles, and neutralised the morose influence of Mme. de Maintenon, had a goitrous neck and decayed front teeth, yet she was proclaimed a beauty. Marguerite de Valois, with whom most of the prominent Frenchmen of her day were at some time or another desperately in love, had heavy cheeks, too prominent eyes, and a think, hanging under The last Duchess do Berri would not have been allowed to so much as compete at a heauty show had she presented herself incognite. Sir Walter Scott, who was close to her at mass in the Tuileries Chapel, wrote in his diary that she was plain, and that her eyes were not fellows. At what age is this charm most subtle Swift wrote with cruel candour of Stella's fading charms, and sent her as a birthday gift a rhymed 'Receipt to Restore her Lost Youth at a period we should consider the prime of life. The caustic Dean of St. Patrick's wondering .

. How angels look at thirty-siz, proves a sharp contrast to the more modern writer, George Lawes, who in his 'Life_of Goethe' speaks of 33 as the fascinating period in a woman's life, being that in which he considered her to have reached the full development of her powers of mind and body. And 33 was the ago at which Frau von Stein proved dangerous to the heart of the poet who had survived the more youthful charms of a Gretchen, a Charlotte, and a Lili.

It is impossible to read the descriptions of Salon life in Paris without realising the immense power of such women as Mme. de Rambouillet, Mme. Deffand, who could tolerate anything but the commonplace; Mme. Neckar, her brilliant daughter Mme. de Stael, and her cherished friend Mme. d'Houdetot, exercised in literary, social, and political matters.

It is interesting to see how the age of the heroins of the modern novel differs from that of older writers. Out of thirty of Scott's heroines sixteen are described as under 20, three as over 20, and only one, Amy Robsart, is a heroine of an ancertain age,' since she is historically a middle-aged, matron and fictitiously a youthful bride. But the conspicuous character of the modern novel is a woman, not a girl, who has lived and experienced much, and not unfrequently is married, before the story introduces her as its central figure .- Walter Besant.

MRE. CALAP GOES TO SEE MRS. MILLS And it was not for an hour's chat over a cup of tea that she went to see her, but on a much more serious matter. For Mrs.-Mills had been quoted in the newspapers as having said something which might be of importance to Mrs. Calap, and also to others. Now the newspapers print so many things that nobody can make head her if it was true what was said. What Mrs. Mills told her is contained in the annexed statement made about a year afterwards: "I, Jane Calap, of 3, Vincent Street, York Road, Leeds, do solemnly and sincerely declare "In the early part of November, 1887, I fell into a low, weak state. I was tired, languid, and weary, and felt as if something had come over me. All my bones ached and I had so much pain that I' did not know where to put myself. I was constantly vomiting, sometimes a green, bitter fluid came away, at other 'times frothy water. I had a dull, heavy pain at the right side, the whites of my syes were a yellow colour, and my skin was sallow, as if I had the jaundice. I had an awful taste in the mouth, my tongue and teeth being covered with slime so thick that I had to scrape it away. My apnetite fell away, and after eating the simplest and lightest food I had so much pain that it nearly killed me. I had always great pain and weight at my chest and through to my back, also a gnawing sinking sensation at the pit of my stomach. I was greatly troubled with wind which rolled all over me, and gave me so much. pain it was like sposms, for I could not straighten myself. I gradually got weaker and weaker, and felt so weak and exhausted that I could scarcely drag myself along. As time went on I wasted away until! I got as thin as a match, and could barely walk across the floor. I felt so downhearted that I used to say I shall never get better any more in this world. I took all kinds of medicines, but finding myself getting worse I got a recommendation to the Leeds Infirmary, where I was attended to by several doctors, who gave me medicines, which I took month after month, but I got no better. The doctors sounded my chest and lungs, and seemed puzzled with my sufferings, for they frequently changed my medicine. Getting no better I next went to the Dispensary in North Street, and persevered taking their medicines, but it was all to no purpose. I now gave up taking physic for I had lost all faith in it, and my sufferings continued until January, 1891, when I heard a neighbour of mine, Mrs. Ann Mills, 40, Bread Street, having been cured (after the doctors had given her up) by a medicine called Mother Seigel's Curative Syrap. Giles on "The New Testament in Chiness" treats of A question that must necesearly be of great importance in the eyes of all missionaries. Mr. E. H. Parker's "Short Journeys in Szechuen" are continued, and a goodly instalment of these travels in the interior of China is given. Mr F. H. Balfour contributes a paper of some length entitled "The Emperor Cheng, founder of the Chinese Empire," which will be read with genuine interest by students of Chinese history. few short notices of New Books and a number of Notes and Queries, one of which "On Chinese Oaths in Western Borneo and Java" might appropriately have been placed under a separate heading, complete the number. H.K. Daily Press.

Trubner's Oriental Record contains the following notice of the Ohina Keriew:-The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position, as regards China and the neighbouring countries; some what similar to that which has been filled in India by the Calcutta Review. The great degree of sttention that has been bestowed of late years upon the investigation of Chinese literature, antiquities, and social developments, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked or from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Gustoms corps, and the missionary body. among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated. and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors Some translations from Chinese novels and plays are marked by both accuracy and freshness of style; and an account of the career of the Chinese post statesman of the eleventh contary, Su Tung-p'o, by Mr. E. C. Bowrs.

is not only historically valuable, but is also distinguished by its literary grace. Boulde notices of new books relating to China and the East, which will be a useful feature of the Review, if carried out with punctuality and detail, we are glad to notice that Notes and Queries are destined to find a place in its pages also. It is to be hoped that this opening for contributions on Chinese subjects may evoke a similar degree of literary teal to that which was displayed during the lifetime of its predemay receive the support useessary to insure.
